communications sector regulation is getting more complex by the day

As a regulatory or policy professional, your success rests on your ability to stay on top of the latest developments and make informed decisions.

However, as technology drives rapid and unexpected change, as new topics and challenges emerge, it can be difficult to keep up, understand the real issues and act with confidence.

At Cullen International, we're here to help you gain clarity and insight on digital policy, regulation and law.

"In a world deluged by irrelevant information, clarity is power."

It's our friendly team of experts that really makes Cullen International what it is.

Multicultural, multilingual, multi-talented: we all share
the same passion for regulation.

about Cullen International

We are an independent regulatory intelligence provider.

Whether your role is to shape regulation in the communications sector or simply stay informed on the latest developments, you need to have the right information at your fingertips - information that you can rely on to be accurate, up to date and easy to understand.

At Cullen International, we've been helping governments, regulators and enterprises overcome this challenge for four decades with subscription-based intelligence services, a comprehensive training and events programme, and our own independent research.

However you choose to tap into our expertise, we can help you stay up to date on the latest developments, up to speed on their implications, and able to see the bigger picture.

a trusted voice
in regulation
for four decades

Since our beginnings in the 1980s, we've covered all major developments in communications sector regulation, and built a unique library of data in the process. Today, we continue to monitor, compare and report on national and international topics across five continents and over 70 countries. Our intelligence is referenced in industry journals, used to brief ministers and top-level executives, and quoted in public consultations.

However, all of what we do is shaped by the same commitment to impartiality, clarity and insight - and that's what's made us a trusted voice in regulation for four decades.

our history

The story of Cullen International starts with one man, one idea and three letters.

In 1986, Bernard Cullen - a British communications expert living in Belgium - sent three letters to contacts at major global companies.

Bernard's idea was to provide a uniquely independent and neutral monitoring and benchmarking service to a few subscribed clients at a reasonable price. The idea was well received by all three companies and Cullen international was born.

Today, Cullen International is a trusted part of the international regulatory community. We serve organizations in over 90 countries, and our team is made up of more than 60 regulatory experts and business support staff.

Bernard handed over the management reins to his senior colleagues many years ago. However, we've never lost sight of the reason for Bernard's success at the beginning - his reputation for expertise and honesty. This continues to inform the way we do business today, and reflects the trust that clients have placed in Cullen International from day one.

our values

What makes Cullen International different?

NEUTRALITY

Both regulators and enterprises rely on us for the same impartial intelligence without compromise.

CLARITY

We make regulation simple so you can focus on the implications of the latest developments - not just the interpretation.

ACCURACY

Our intelligence is up-to-date and only ever derived from trusted public sources.

EXPERTISE

Our friendly team is made up of some of the world's top regulation experts.

EFFICIENCY

We're here to help you save time. Our intelligence makes it quick and simple to grasp a topic and put that knowledge into action.

"I have used Cullen International's services for many years and, as a regulator, have always found their reports to be up-to-date, accurate and extremely useful. I am always impressed by the competence and willingness to help of Cullen's analysts."
